

PNW Debate: Speech Times

Pre-round Preparation (20 minutes): Debaters meet in their assigned room for introductions. The affirmative discloses key points of their case and advocacy. Debaters consult with coaches to prepare.

First Affirmative Constructive (6 minutes): Establishes the case in favor of the topic.

Cross-examination (3 minutes): The second negative asks questions of the first affirmative. Questions can either seek explanation or challenge the speaker's arguments.

First Negative Constructive (6 minutes): Establishes the negative's core arguments and initial lines of refutation against the affirmative case.

Cross-examination (3 minutes): The first affirmative asks questions of the first negative. Questions can either seek explanation or challenge the speaker's arguments.

Second Affirmative Constructive (6 minutes): Responds to initial negative arguments and reinforces the affirmative case.

Cross-examination (3 minutes): The first negative asks questions of the second affirmative. Questions can either seek explanation or challenge the speaker's arguments.

Second Negative Constructive (6 minutes): First half of "negative block," or two consecutive negative speeches, wherein the negative divides up arguments established in the first negative constructive to expand and elaborate on those arguments. For example, if the first negative established 3 major arguments against the affirmative, the second negative will speak about 2 of those arguments while their partner will cover the third in the first negative rebuttal.

Cross-examination (3 minutes): The second affirmative asks questions of the second negative. Questions can either seek explanation or challenge the speaker's arguments.

First Negative Rebuttal (4 minutes): Second half of the "negative block." Expands and elaborates on those arguments not covered by the second negative constructive. Arguments at this stage should not be "new," but clearly linked back to issues established in the first negative constructive.

First Affirmative Rebuttal (4 minutes): Reinforces the affirmative case through refutation of arguments raised in the negative block. "New" arguments should not appear unless in response to new issues raised during the negative block.

Second Negative Rebuttal (4 minutes): Crystallizes the debate into the most significant issues and provides the final appeal for a decision in their favor. "New" arguments should be disregarded.

Second Affirmative Rebuttal (4 minutes): Crystallizes the debate into the most significant issues and provides the final appeal for a decision in their favor. "New" arguments should be disregarded.

Post-round Discussion (10-15 minutes): The critic delivers their decision and rationale for which team did the best debating and provides individual speaking and argument feedback to each debater. Debaters are encouraged to ask follow-up questions and take notes.
